Every occurrence of cancer arises and develops further because of a number of factors. It can be regarded as the final phase in disorder and stress, which has been sustained over a period of many years. Therefore the following information and advice can count as an effective therapy and serve as a framework for a holistic course of treatment. This must always be adjusted to suit the individual. The plan given here can be extended in all directions. However, care should be taken that the patient is not overtaxed by being given too many remedies and forms of treatment.

One important measure, which should be carried out at the beginning of each and every course of treatment for cancer is the cleansing of the intestine in all its functions simultaneously by administering suitable SANUKEHL (Pleo San in the U.S.) preparations. In particular, SANUKEHL PSEU (Pleo San Pseu) results in a positive stimulation of the tumour necrosis factor (TNF) and an equally positive granulocyte macrophage colony stimulation factor (GMCSF). The revitalization of the intestine should not be limited only to the intestinal flora but must also include the intestinal mucous membrane and the villi. Both therapeutic measures, the administration of the SANUKEHL remedies and the revitalization of the intestine, should be used in a stronger form in cases where chemotherapy and radiation therapy have been used. It is also essential to achieve the most comprehensive therapeutic care possible for the cancer patient by encouraging one to tackle one's own illness and the message therein, and at the same time for the patient to have high regard and care of the therapist.

Cleansing the milieu of the intestine and organs

The first remedy of choice for this cleansing is FORTAKEHL 5X (Pleo Fort in the U.S.) in tablet or drop form. One tablet or ten drops should be given twice daily. If the patient also has symptoms of fungal infection, EXMYKEHL (Pleo Ex) is given in addition, one suppository twice daily. This combination treatment is followed after 10 days with a basic therapy of MUCOKEHL 5X (Pleo Muc), one tablet or 10 drops each morning, and NIGERSAN 5X (Pleo Nig), one tablet or 10 drops each evening. These doses of MUCOKEHL and NIGERSAN are given from Monday to Friday each week, whilst FORTAKEHL and if necessary EXMYKEHL continue to be given on Saturdays and Sundays during the basic treatment.

Improving resistance

In order to strengthen the immune system of the patient, it is recommended that at the very beginning of the course of therapy SANUKEHL PSEU 6X should be administered: 10 drops twice daily, to be taken orally or rubbed into the inner bend of the elbow. SELENOKEHL (5 drops each morning) [Not available in the U.S.] and ZINKOKEHL (Pleo Zink) (10 drops each evening) are also given orally, with additionally THYMOKEHL 6X (Pleo Thym) one capsule or one suppository once daily. UTILIN "S" (Pleo Ut "S") is also recommended for the strengthening of the immune system with two capsules of the "weak" form, higher potency, per month.

Important information can also be found in the Isopathic/Homeopathic Materia Medica in the section on Basic therapy for the treatment of chronic illnesses .

Other necessary treatments

In an organism, which is affected by cancer, a hidden focal event often plays a decisive role in the development of a malignancy. These stressful foci are very often found in the teeth, particularly in dead roots, whether or not they have been subjected to root treatment. The bacterium Leptotrichia buccalis (Siphonospora according to v. Brehmer) is frequently found there, just as in the organs, which are affected by tumors. Every tooth, which has been subjected to root treatment must be removed, as well as every tooth with a dead root. Since all the heavy metals - particularly mercury - block important enzyme systems, all amalgam tooth fillings must be removed when the teeth and jaw are being revitalized. Scattered foci of other types in the patient's body should also be tracked down in order to revitalize or eliminate them: this can be achieved by all types of excretion of toxins, acids and waste products.

The atrophic intestinal mucous membrane of the sick person - including the Peyers' plaques, which are important for resistance - can only be restored by means of a hypo-antigenic diet, which is also low on animal protein in all its forms. However, at the same time this diet should be as rich as possible in all plant matter and living material, such as is to be found particularly in fresh fruit and vegetables in their natural state. Such a diet does of course require that the weakened digestive tract is still able to cope well with it. It can be of real benefit only without the basic allergens, hen's eggs and dairy products as well as other specific antigenic foods.

Every medical person who thinks holistically, knows the problems of psychic wounds or burdens in cancer patients. These are indicators for the severity and progress of the illness, which should not be underestimated. It frequently happens that the patient does not only receive a psychic shock when he is informed of the diagnosis of "cancer"; it is often the case that he has already been under the burden of a psychic trauma for a long time, which has robbed him of much vitality. All of this requires better attention to and care of the sick person by the therapist. Here the administration of MUCEDOKEHL 5X (Pleo Mucedo) can be of great benefit. This remedy has been shown to influence the psychic condition via the limbic system and so is also to be used in cases of anxiety- 5 to 10 drops may be administered up to twice a day according to the severity of the condition.

Chronic recurring infections of the bladder and respiratory tract

Natural healing treatment plans put things right

By: Wolfgang Podmirseg, Germany

Edited by Dr. Kirk R. Slagel, N.M.D., M.Ed., U.S.A.

Recurring inflammation of the genito-urinary tract is often found in young women and girls. This phenomenon is partly influenced by the fact that many young females are on birth control pills. The hormone content of the Pill affects general hormone levels and can create dysregulation of the vaginal flora. This is particularly obvious when fungi are involved in the infections. In my experience however, older women also frequently experience vaginal infections. Orthodox medicine and treatment plans often prove unsatisfactory. Many patients try to fight the infections, sometimes for years with varying degrees of success before they seek help from an alternative medical practitioner.

A case in practice: woman aged 75 years

This woman came to see me for the first time 5 years ago. She has been suffering for over 20 years from a recurrent infection of the bladder. Her GP prescribed antibiotics every time, as was usual. She was told that if the antibiotics were given only in small quantities, they would not cause any danger. In addition, because of her age and the fact that it had become chronic, she was also told the condition could only be alleviated to some extent, but not healed!

If the patient took the antibiotics, the symptoms disappeared very quickly. However, the intervals between the attacks became increasingly shorter and each time the symptoms became more intense. It was also found that the weather influenced her condition: when the weather was bad she had cramps and pains in her kidneys that seemed to be associated with a bladder condition, which had to be corrected by means of an operation.

Treatment Plan: Infections

Immediate discontinuation of the antibiotic, at the point when she was free of infection! A urine test showed enormous hyperacidity. In order to eliminate the cramps and pain, I prescribed ALKALA-N (Pleo Alkala in the U.S.) twice daily, each time with 60 drops of SANUVIS (Pleo Sanuvis) in a glass days alternately she was prescribed NOTAKEHL 3X (Pleo Not) and PEFRAKEHL 3X (Pleo Pef) suppositories before going to bed at night. The infections did not recur for some time!

Intestinal Sanitation

The patient's diet was not altogether ideal; her intestinal milieu was significantly altered. Laboratory examination of the stools showed a massive amount of Candida and mold in the intestinal flora. I immediately prescribed an alkalizing diet. In addition, I recommended a revitalization of the intestine as a matter of urgency. The patient declined as she felt her most pressing problem, the bladder infection, had been cleared up. Even explaining this concept holistically did not make her change her mind. Four weeks later the woman came to see me again. The diagnosis: another bladder infection associated with a cold. I prescribed NOTAKEHL and PEFRAKEHL suppositories again. At this time the woman said she was ready to undergo revitalization of the intestine.

This I carried out as follows:

FORTAKEHL 5X (Pleo Fort) 1 tablet twice daily (for 10 days)

ALBICANSAN 5X (Pleo Alb) 8 drops once daily (for 10 days)

PEFRAKEHL 3X (Pleo Pef) suppositories once daily, except Mondays and Thursdays (for 14 days)

ALBICANSAN 3X (Pleo Alb) suppositories once a week on Thursdays (for 10 weeks)

EXMYKEHL (Pleo Ex) suppositories also once a week on Thursdays (for 10 weeks)

LATENSIN (Pleo Lat) 1 capsule (weak) once a week (for 5 weeks)

RECARCIN (Pleo Rec) 1 capsule once a week (for 5 weeks)

ALKALA N (Pleo Alkala) twice daily Phoenix detoxification therapy over 45 days: Mutaflor, Hylak forte, Imbak Mucos.

This cure was a success for the patient. The woman, who in the meantime had reached 80 years of age, kept to a moderate diet. Her urine tests were always "without findings" and she has remained free of problems up to the present.

A case in practice: woman aged 52 years

This woman worked as the director of an export department in a responsible position. In her hectic life she was suffering more and more frequently from flu and inflammation of the airways. Each time her doctor gave her antibiotics. This spring she became ill again: high temperature, a cold, and bronchitis with hoarseness. Her doctor prescribed her the conventional medicines: antibiotics, codeine, anticongestants, and medication to bring down her temperature. Three days later the patient had suppurating conjunctivitis. The treatment: antibiotic eye ointment. A fortnight later the whole situation had not improved significantly. On the contrary, she began to show additional symptoms of acute otitis media. The antibiotic prescription was greatly increased. On the 16th day she became deaf in one ear. After treatment with more antibiotics and anti-congestants from an ENT specialist for three weeks, the situation was still very unsatisfactory: hearing problems coming and going, pressure in the head and discharge. The ENT doctor challenged her complaints and said, "It's all in your imagination!" At last, the patient sought alternative help.

Treatment plan

Initially, I prescribed RELIVORA KOMPLEX (Pleo Relivora), ALKALA-N (Pleo Alkala) twice daily plus SANUVIS (Pleo Sanuvis) combined in a glass of lukewarm water. For the second part of the treatment I added Phoenix detoxification over 45 days.

Result: the secretions flowed.

When antibiotics and other remedies against infections and colds are used, among other things the production of mucous, which is so important in the sinuses and bronchial tubes, is inhibited. The secretions dry up. These incrustations irritate the immune system, with the consequence that infections recur at increasingly shorter intervals. In the case that I have described, I treated the patient with nasal reflex therapy every two days. In addition I used ear candles every third day. This brought about an equalization of pressure in the nasal sinuses and in the hearing. I promoted the flow of secretions with Umekaloabo (Iso), 20 drops by mouth 3 times daily. Later, I also added Potassium bichromicum in 6X trituration: one small pinch on the tongue and two to three pinches to be sniffed up into the nose three times daily. Using Lymphdiaral salve (from Pascoe), I massaged the mastoid out toward the lymph nodes of the jaw. Now, in early summer, there is no longer so much secretion. Her hearing is back to normal and a normal equalization of pressure has been achieved.

Prophylactic measure

For the Autumn, I agreed with the patient that she should have Dr. Rau's Paracelsus inoculation against influenza. This consists of three injections four weeks apart. Each injection contains a mixture of the following remedies:

1 ampoule of Interferon injeel (from Heel, has to be procured from abroad)

1 ampoule of UTILIN medium (SANUM)

1 ampoule influenza nosode injeel (Heel)

1 ampoule Engystol (Heel)

1 ampoule Ubichinon compositum (Heel)

1 ampoule VITAMIN B COMPLEX (SANUM)

Pleomorphic Products has Homeopathic Botanical Remedies. These will be detailed in upcoming issues.

Pleo Cal (Calvatia gigantea) Calvakehl in Germany

Pleo Cal is extracted from the giant puffball mushroom (Calvatia gigantea). The use of the giant puffball as a styptic and wound-healing agent was known to folk medicine as far back as the 16th century. Thanks to the vascular and capillary effectiveness of the ingredients, Pleo Cal is an excellent hemostyptic for cases of atonic hemorrhage.

Pleo Cal is available in 30 ml dropper bottles, 1X strength.
See the German Materia Medica for complete description.
